We can advise you on the digital product that best suits your requirements and budget. Camera House can also burn your digital images to CD or print direct from your memory card. We can even upload your photos to the web. Digital imaging is certainly not a passing phase; it will be with us for a long, long time.

Think digital... easy.
Think Camera House!

Digital Memory Cards

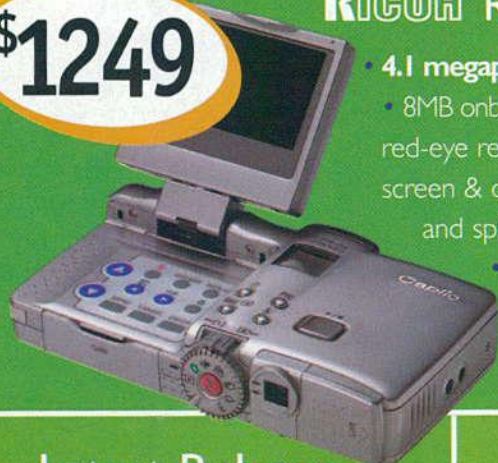

Digital cameras use memory cards instead of traditional negative film to store images. The cards are available in various storage sizes from 16mb to 256 mb. The number of images each card holds is dependant on the resolution quality you select . . . good, better, best. The higher the resolution the less images the card can store.

Megapixel equals image size

The more megapixels the larger the image size. Refer to chart opposite.

Magnification (power) & Objective lens (front)

Magnification is the amount the object viewed is enlarged. ie; with 8x42 binoculars, the '8' is the 'binocular power', which means the image is 8 times the size as seen by the unaided eye. The larger of the two numbers, (in this case, 42) refers to the lens diameter in mm. The larger the diameter of the lens, the more light the lens can gather, which in turn improves image detail and clarity.

Buying Tip

The important characteristic of a telescope is its aperture, or diameter, not simply power or magnification. Higher powers enable increased resolution, but it is the telescope's aperture that determines how much you can see. The larger the telescope, the more detail that will be observed.
