Program

- The NSW government's perspective and approach to community renewal and public housing
- Tenants with complex issues: tenants' rights and responsibilities
- Tenants with complex issues: the role of human service agencies
- The role of public housing estate redevelopment in promoting social inclusion
- Community development and social entrepreneurship
- Tenure mix, stock transfers and public/private partnerships

This seminar looks behind the jargon of community renewal, intensive tenancy management, capacity building, social entrepreneurs, deconcentration, tenure mix, and social capital.

The seminar will be of interest to public tenants, social housing managers, community development workers, tenancy rights advocates, dispute resolution agencies, urban planners, and housing and social researchers.

The seminar is sponsored by Shelter NSW and the Ian Buchan Fell Housing Research Centre at the University of Sydney.

Renewing the Estate

Improving lives - strengthening communities

A Shelter seminar about public housing estates

Providers of public housing no longer just provide 'bricks and mortar'. They are landlords to a diverse mix of tenants. They try to contribute to the whole community in which their tenants live.

Is it possible to balance the rights of individual tenants with expectations that everyone must be a 'good neighbour'? Are community renewal projects just window-dressing? Is breaking up large public housing estates the answer ... and if so, what exactly is the 'problem'? These are some of the questions that will be discussed at this seminar.
